Information for each budgeted fund is provided in this budget document.

It is the administration's responsibility to publish and disseminate budget information to the commission and community. We welcome the opportunity to present and discuss operational plans and related financial impact with all interested parties. Interaction among interested groups consistently leads to operational improvements, which translates to quality opportunities for growth in the City of Fort Scott.

In developing a new budget there are significant issues and considerations which impact the final product. These issues are relevant in helping the city attain stated goals and objectives.

Reporting Policies

It is the policy of the City of Fort Scott to record financial data on a budgetary basis of accounting by fund. Regular monthly treasurer's reports are presented to the commission summarizing activity by fund. An independent certified public accounting firm is selected by the commission and they perform annual audits. Their opinion on the city's financial statements is then issued publicly.

Budget Development Goals and Process

The budget process can be disaggregated conceptually into a five-step process that includes: planning, preparation, adoption, implementation, and evaluation. The process is driven by two objectives. The first is to provide public safety and welfare for the community. The second objective is to maximize the use of available resources. Within this framework, the commission attempts to balance the needs of the community and the resources available to the city from local, state, and federal sources. The end product details the revenues and expenditures to support the programs and services for the City of Fort Scott. In addition, the budget provides a road map for past and current values.

Planning

The planning process for the next year's budget starts following the adoption of the current year's budget. The first steps are the review of the budget calendar and goals. The calendar includes all of the important activities in the budgeting process; including the projected dates on which important decisions are scheduled to be made. Once adopted, the calendar represents the guideline for the preparation and adoption of the financial plan of the city.

Preparation

The preparation of the budget is a two-fold process of analyzing projected revenues and anticipated expenditures. Both processes occur simultaneously during the planning stages.

Anticipating expenditures begins with the process of reviewing budget programs for both new considerations and suggestions for deletion of budget issues no longer applicable. In reviewing current programs and services, attention is given to the merits of continuing the program or service in the manner it has traditionally existed. Salaries and benefits constitute 46% of total allocations. Special attention is given to each department to ensure that employee assignments and re-assignments provide sufficient services to the public. When the budget programs have been reviewed, discussions continue with the department directors and City Manager until the final review is presented to the commission. With the priorities of the commissioners in mind, a balance is reached, and preliminary budgets are set forth for the next budget year.

Adoption, Implementation, and Evaluation

Following the calendar set forth during the planning process, the preliminary budget is presented to the commissioners in late June. In July, the commission considers the budget and provides for public input and comment on the financial plan to fund the city's programs and services. Final passage of the budget occurs in August and implementation occurs during the next fiscal year. Each year the budget is evaluated, and results are presented in the annual budget document and audit review.

We would like to thank the citizens, city officials and commission for all their input during the budget process.

Respectfully submitted,

Mark McCoy, Interim City Manager

Susan E. Bancroft, Finance Director
